Examiner Hall,

My client has agreed with your proposed amendment except below-mentioned "configured to receive" and "that receives."

I mean the client would like to use "for -ing," as they always do in computer program claims.

Would you please tell me how you think about this? Thank you.

Sincerely,
Akiyoshi Onda

Dear Mr. Onda,

Yes, it is OK not to use configured to, but you should remove the intended use language, "for receiving," by using some other phrase such as "that receives."

Examiner Hall,
I securely received it.
One thing you did not mention on the phone in your claim.
I do not use "configured to" in computer program claims.
I hope it is OK not using it.

Thank you for your help.
